GOING FOR BROKE SPECIAL REPORT

Nearly 40 years after the first slots rolled in Atlantic City, this east coast gambling Mecca now finds itself in a struggle to survive. Competition, bankruptcies, lost tax revenue and a lack of direction have many wondering: can Atlantic City reinvent itself? Find out in our four-part series.

Part One: Atlantic City's downfall

Why the fall of Atlantic City's casinos will hurt all NJ taxpayers

Atlantic City's monopoly, which attracted hordes and generated revenue that was spread throughout the state, has vanished. Now, to take a gambling term, the house is getting beat. Badly... For more on AC, visit Atlantic City: Going for Broke.

Jun. 9, 2013

Will online gambling help or hurt AC?

Casinos will win with new gambling revenue. New Jersey will win with new tax revenue. Consumers will win with a new entertainment option that they can play from the comfort of a coffee shop or their own sofa.

Decades after gambling debuted in Atlantic City, New Jersey's gaming capital is still an uneasy patchwork of casino glamour and aging resort-town decay. See the scenes.

FINDING OUR WAY BACK SANDY SIX MONTHS LATER

We are still recovering from superstorm Sandy — some of us awash in red tape and unexpected expenses, and many more re-examining what it means to live at the Shore. But six months later, with determination and lots of elbow grease, we are getting back to normal — a passage examined and celebrated in this special report.

A LEDGER LIVE SPECIAL REPORT

Splinters & Sand: Rebuilding our memories. Rebuilding the Jersey Shore.
"Splinters & Sand: Rebuilding our memories. Rebuilding the Jersey Shore." A Ledger Live Special Report - In a tour of the Hurricane Sandy ravaged Jersey Shore in the weeks after the storm, longtime reporter and shore resident, Brian Donohue, explores the emotional attachment people have to the Jersey Shore and what makes it so broad and deep. In conversations with boardwalk business owners, homeowners and visits to emotionally significant shore spots from his own life, he looks for clues as to how the shore might be rebuilt after the storm. Donohue makes the case that the emotional and cultural value is a powerful and legitimate factor that needs to be considered as the shore is rebuilt. "Splinters & Sand" is an extended mini-documentary length episode of the Ledger Live video webcast. (Video by Brian Donohue and Bumper DeJesus)

Take a group of 15 and 16-year-old girls, feed them cake all day, and what do you get?

One of the more unforgettable days in the Munchmobile's 16-year history, and believe me, there have been a few.

"I thought I was going to keel over like Aliza," Julia Blake said.

Video: Newark elementary school fights for survival

Last year the Newark Archdiocese closed the Queen of Angels School. But with principal Everlyn Hay leading the way, the faculty, staff, parents and students have fought to keep the school open this year as Affirmation Academy. Next year they hope to continue as a charter school. (Video by John Munson/The Star-Ledger)
