Q Does Aspirin Reduce the Risk of Colorectal Cancer?

By Sneha Bhawanji Chalasani, MD, Medical Oncologist | Memorial Sloan Kettering Basking Ridge

A healthy lifestyle — including maintaining a healthy weight, not smoking, and avoiding excessive alcohol consumption — can help reduce your risk of getting colorectal cancer. While it's suggested that the regular use of aspirin and other NSAIDs (non-steroidal anti-inflammatory drugs) such as ibuprofen and naproxen also lowers the risk.

We asked Sneha Bhawanji Chalasani, MD, medical oncologist at Memorial Sloan Kettering Basking Ridge, to weigh in on the possible benefits and risks of using aspirin to reduce the risk of colorectal cancer.

HOW DO NSAIDS REDUCE COLORECTAL CANCER RISK?

Colorectal cancer — and other cancer in general — may result from an inflammatory process. Over time, chronic inflammation damages DNA, which can in turn lead to cancer. So if you block inflammation, which these drugs do, that should decrease the risk.

These drugs also obstruct the production of hormones like prostaglandin that promote cell growth, and inhibit the cell cycle and modify gene expression. These two mechanisms are understood to further understand these mechanisms.

One important discovery is that people with colorectal cancer tend to have more bleeding from ulcers than others. Research is ongoing to determine who is more likely to benefit.

HOW MUCH CAN NSAIDS REDUCE COLORECTAL CANCER RISK?

Studies indicate that the risk is reduced between 20 and 40%, but questions remain. Colon cancer takes a long time to develop, and you don't know how many years a person would need to take aspirin to reduce the risk. The aspirin would have to be taken every day. Some people in aspirin trials have been hospitalized, but other research indicates that one would need a higher dose.

ARE THERE DOWNSIDERS TO TAKING AN NSAID EVERY DAY?

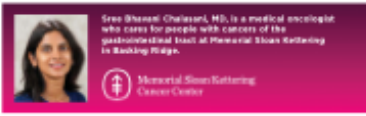

It can have serious side effects. Aspirin increases the risk of gastrointestinal bleeding and ulcers. The combination of aspirin, NSAIDs, blood thinners, and caffeine to it, aspirin, some NSAIDs may raise the risk of heart attacks and strokes, which could be fatal.

WHAT'S THE BOTTOM LINE ON TAKING NSAIDS TO REDUCE COLORECTAL CANCER RISK?

The US Preventive Services Task Force recommends a daily low-dose aspirin only for adults between the ages of 60 and 69, and only those who have a 10% or greater risk of cardiovascular disease. Aspirin may also be used to reduce the formation of blood clots that can lead to heart attacks.

In addition, these recommendations apply to those who have a life expectancy of ten years or more. It may not be suitable for people with other serious health conditions, and aspirin use is not recommended for people who are at increased risk of bleeding.

Patients should discuss this issue with their physician. It is important to stress that a daily aspirin doesn't take the place of regular screening for colorectal cancer. Everyone over age 50 should be considered for colonoscopy, and people who may be at increased risk for colorectal cancer due to family history or other factors should discuss screening with their doctor.

EVERY DAY WE IMPROVE CANCER TREATMENT. TODAY WE'RE BRINGING IT CLOSER TO YOU.

Start planning your summer days and nights

So, if you start planning a Jersey Shore weekend, it's probably going to fill up pretty quickly.

You can start the day with a run on the boardwalk or maybe some beach yoga. Dash off to a Red Bull restaurant for brunch. Then hit the shopping centers and beachfronts for the summer. Then finish off the night with a concert. Not a bad day, right?

Here's the great thing about summer: whether it's day or night, a weekend or mid-week, the Jersey Shore offers so much. Days can be filled with sunbathing through park fairs and festivals or sit a little away from it all. At night, you can unwind with a cocktail on a rooftop bar or get your groove on at one of the State Party Summer Stage.

That's why the Asbury Park Press and the USA Today Network are proud to bring you the 2017 Jersey Shore Summer Guide. This year, our reporters and editors have packed the five guide with great things to do, photos to eat, festivals - even some plans for rainy days and weekdays.

WE WANT to hear all your thoughts and opinions on the guide. So we've added a new feature: a "Feedback" section. It's available in the Google Play and Apple app stores, and will help you to make plans for the entire season whenever you are in New Jersey.

COLLEGES SPEND A LOT OF MONEY TO REACH PROSPECTIVE STUDENTS, BUT MOST OF THEIR EFFORTS MISS THE MARK. WHY?

A limited understanding of student data hinders schools' ability to target effectively.

To effectively market to students, first gather all that you know about your current and former students, and use information and insight to inform your marketing plan for prospective students.

STEP 1: IDENTIFY WHAT YOU KNOW ABOUT YOUR TARGET AUDIENCE

Think of your marketing universe as an archery target in which the bulls-eye consists of current and former students. This includes traditional students enrolling directly after high school, but also transfer students, non-traditional students and alumni.

THE FRENCH AND INDIAN WAR

The French and Indian War was the North American conflict between Great Britain, France and Eastern Native American tribes that began in 1754 and ended with the Treaty of Paris in 1763. The war provided Great Britain enormous territorial gains in North America, but disputes over subsequent frontier policy led to Colonial discontent, and ultimately to the American Revolution. Explore the origins, battles and aftermath of this conflict as depicted by some of the foremost artists of the subject. 52 paintings will be on display in our auditorium.

Picture one detail of just three of the many works of art that will be on display:
Council with the Allies, left depicts General Montcalm at Lake Champlain a month before the Battle of Fort Mifflin. Hopy by Robert Gilling.
One of Their Own, also by Robert Gilling, center. At the end of a Pacific War, two Highland soldiers returned to the grave of one of their fallen comrades from the 1763 Forbes Expedition to capture Fort Duquesne.
